CONGRESS. shall will be made

THIRTY-THIRD CONGRESS-FIRST SESSION.

After our report had closed yesterday,
Mr. Taylor, of Ohio, obtained the floor. He said that he felt constrained, as a member of the Committee on Territories, to refer, for a few moments, to the distracting question which had occupied the attention of Congress for the last four or five months.

had occupied the attention of Congress for the last four or five months.

He referred to the impediments interposed by the Nebraska bill to the business of the country. He had too much respect for the party to which he belonged to believe that they would have countenanced such a measure when there was no necessity for it—a sectional question, which, in his judgment, transcended in importance any which had occupied the attention of Congress since 1820.

It had been asserted by gentlemen, and by the organ of the Executive, that this was an Administration measure, and that the Administration was determined to carry it through the House, either by persuasion, intimidation, Administration measure, and that the Administration was determined to carry it through the House, either by persuasion, intimidation, or threats. As a Representative of a free people, he wished to preserve the power, privileges, and immunities of this body, as, to use the expression of the distinguished member from Missouri, [Mr. Benton.] the great branch of the American Government. From a small nation of three or four millions, we had grown to be a nation having twenty five millions of inhabitants. We had advanced in prosperity, wealth, power, and greatness, even beyond the expectations of the founders of the Government, until now we had become the great Republic of the world, the admiration of our own people and of all mankind. But in the progress of our country the three departments had not equally preserved their power. He thanked Heaven that the Judiciary of the nation still stood in all its majesty and purity: but the Legislative power had been in a great degree overshadowed by the Executive authority, no matter into whose hands it might have fallen.

The Legislative power ought to seorn and look down with contempt every intimation, even in the political organ or in an official communication, the object of which was to drive them, to the detriment of profitable legislation, to the discussion of exciting questions, calculated to arouse the passions of the different sections of our Union.

In his humble judgment—and he spoke as a conservative man—if Congress should repeal the Missouri Compromise of 1820, they would set a precedent by which all other compromises would be repealed.

He then stated his objections to the bill—set a precedent by which all other compro-mises would be repealed.

He then stated his objections to the bill— first, because he did not deem it necessary; sec-ond, he was not satisfied with the boundaries it proposed; third, it would violate our treaty stipulations with the Indians; and, fourth, it proposed to repeal the Missouri Compromise.

Senate, Thursday, April 27, 1854. Mr. Sumner presented a memorial signed by the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, President of the State Senate, Speaker of the House, Ex-centive Council, and members of the Legisla-ture of Mussachusetts, in favor of cheap ocean postage.

Also, memorials on the same subject from citizens of Providence, Rhode Island.

Mr. Toucey presented similar memorials from citizens of Connectiout.

Mr. Pratt presented the memorial of the Mayor and City Councils of the city of Baltimore, asking a grant of land to aid in the es-tablishment of Juvenile Reform Schools and Houses of Refuge.

Mr. Fish presented the memorial of Jews, in favor of securing religious freedom to Americase in foreign countries.

Mr. Rusk presented the memorial of the clerks of the Washington City Post Office, asking an increase of compensation.

Mr. Everett reported a bill for the relief of Henry Cronchey; and the same was consider-Henry Cronchey; and the same was considered and passed.

The bill for the relief of Francis Cousin was nsidered and passed.

Senate then resumed the consideration of the bill making appropriations for the service of the Indian department for the year ending June 30, 1855.

Mr. Sebastian, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, reported numerous amendments to the bill, and they were, after explanation, to the bill, and they were, after explanation, all adopted.

New Indian agencies were established in Utah, Washington, and New Mexico.

Mr. Toombs, from the same committee, reported an amendment appropriating $350,000, to pay certain claims of citizens of Georgia and Alabama, for depredations by the Creeks, in 1992 by in 1836-7.

This amendment at the last session was by a vote of the Senate ruled to be out of order, and at a previous session was ruled to be i order. Mr. Hunter objected to the amendment, as

The question of order was debated at length. The Chair decided the amendment to be out of order.

Mr. Toombs appealed from the decision, and, after debate, the decision of the Chair was sustained—yeas 17, nays 15.

Other amendments were offered.

House of Representatives, April 27, 1854. Before organizing the House, the Speaker caused to be read to the members the invitation of the American Scientific Association, inviting of the American Scientific Association, inviting them to be present at its meetings, now being held at the Smithsonian Institution.

Mr. Jones, of Tennessee, stated that the Senate bill making appropriations for the support of the Military Academy at West Point had been returned to the House by the Senate, which helds had referred to recover in the had been returned to the House by the Senate, which body had refused to concur in the amendments made thereto by the House; and asked for the appointment of a Committee of Conference, which was ordered.

The consideration of "Bennett's Land Bill," dividing the public lands among the States, was then resumed.

Mr. Disney arose, and entered upon an analysis of the bill. He stated that throughout all party changes and vicissitudes for sixty years the public domain had been preserved intact and inviolate. It was received for this Congress to violate that national treasure. New principles had been introduced, and new practices, threatening the destruction and the sacrifice of the national domain.

Gentlemen had set too high an estimate upon temporary popularity at home, and were seeking to secure it by proffering to their constituents the plunder they were to derive from the national wealth.

the national wealth.

He had examined with diligence the array of facts and figures presented in support of this measure, and, so far as he had yet discovered, not one of them was correct—not one.

Mr. Disney, in entering upon his minute investigation of this subject, stated that he would do so in part for the amusement of the House. He then made an elaborate comparative exhibit of the tables quoted by Mr. Bennett, and those upon which alone, he averred, reliance could be placed.

When Mr. Disney had concluded the House.

when Mr. Disney had concluded, the House solved itself into Committee of the Whole the state of the Union, Mr. Chandler in

Mr. Smith, of Virginia, arose and addressed the Committee on the Nobraska bill. He said that he felt deeply interested in this subject. When a wrong and outrage upon the Constitu-tion has been committed, time cannot hal-into this country by legislation. Slaves had been brought to the country and sold, and no-body thought of the necessity of a law to protect them. Slaves came into the country as other property came in, and no one disputed

Slavery existed in every State up to the Rev tion, and the Provinces moved on without in the old Articles of Confederation, no ob acles were interposed.

The Ordinance of 1787 had been enacted by he concurrence of eight States, the Constituelioved, no legal existence. Virginia had never recognised the principle embraced, as he was prepared to demonstrate rom the record. He argued that Congress had not, under the Constitution, the same power over the Territo-ries that it possesses over the District of Co-lumbia, forts, dock-yards, &c.; and he hence inferred that Congress had not the power as-sumed in 1820, to prohibit Slavery from any State.

He denied that peace had followed that Compromise, though the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. Benton] had declared that it had.

For the last twenty years it had been a constant subject of strife here. An Ex-President came down from his place to declare a war of Abolitionism here. The gentleman from Ohio once had the temerity to offer a resolution here, declaring that it was lawful for a slave to slave the slave to sl claring that it was lawful for a slave to slay the family of his master.

Mr. Giddings. Will the gentleman—
Mr Smith. I can lose no time. The gentleman will remember a resolution that sent him out of this House.

Mr. Giddings. And my constituents sent me back. Mr. Smith. Yes, by a majority diminished

Mr. Giddings. By an increased majority.
Mr. Smith. He had been elected by a maority of three or four thousand, and—Mr. Giddings. And was returned by a large majority.

Mr. Smith. Well, he came back, and asked this House to permit him to take his place here.

Mr. Giddings. Does the gentleman assert

Mr. Smith. He did-Mr. Giddings. Never. I never asked anyhing. Mr. Smith. Then his colleague did it fo him; and— Mr. Giddings. Oh! [waving his hand] Mr. Smith resumed, and proceeded to review the history of the country, to show that a con-test had always existed between the North and the South, and that the North had never ubmitted to any arrangement.

Mr. Smith alluded to Mr. Clay, as having enied the paternity of the Missouri Compro

[Here a brief colloquy upon this point are between Mr. Smith and Mr. Cullom.] between Mr. Smith and Mr. Cullom.]

Mr. Smith continued, and, replying to the arguments of Mr. Benton on Tuesday, quoted that gentleman as having, in 1850, denounced and derided the compromise he has so recently declared his political standing to rest upon.

[Mr. Benton did not arise to correct any of the assertions of Mr. Smith, but several times from his seat, in an excited manner, made remarks not audible to the reporter.]

Mr. Barry, of Mississippi, next obtained the floor, and entered into an argument to prove that the Constitution, and it alone, is the fundamental law of the land, and that no legislative act whatever can properly be held a Ils solve when the discovery of Dr. Molane's Liver Pals solved the difficulty, and presented to the world the great Specific for that complicated malady, which has at-tained such widely spread celebrity for its certainty of cure. This successful remedy was the result of many years' study, in which the symptoms were nar-rowly observed, and are thus described by the Doctor himself:

"Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.—Pain in the right side, and sometimes in the left, under the edge of the ribs—the patient being rarely able to lie on the left; pain sometimes under the shoulder-blade, frequently extending to the top of the shoulder—often mistaken for rheumatism in the arm; sickness of stomach, and loss of appetite; bowels mostly contive, out sometimes alternate with lax ; dull, heavy sensaion in the back part of the head; loss of memory, with uneasiness of having neglected something; some-times dry cough; weariness and debility; nervous irritability; feet cold or burning, and prickly sensa-tion of skin; low spirits, lassitude, with disinclina-tion to exercise, although satisfied it would be beneficial. In fact, patient distrusts every remedy."

of every style, all of the best qualities, and for which we shall have one price only.

We shall sell cheaper than we ever have done; and in having one price only (which, in our opinion, is the only fair and equitable way of doing business) we shall maintain our self-respect, which is above all price or success. Moreover, we expect to retain all the trade of those prompt customers who have made their purchases of us for some years past, and doubtless we shall have a large accession of new customers, who prefer to buy where one fair price only is asked.

We feel that our simple word is requisite only to satisfy our former customers that the one price system is the correct one, and to their advantage; and we do not hesitate to assert our belief that all candid and intelligent persons will, after an impartial examination of prices, fabric, and styles, give a one price store the preference. Those who are not judges of goods cannot fail to be impressed at once with the manifold and vast advantages to the purchaser resulting from the adoption in good faith of the one price system; it necessarily insures low prices to the purchaser, for it becomes absolutely necessary to meet at the start all competition that can be offered in prices.

From the United States Argus. To those persons who may visit Washington, and are in want of a boot that cannot be excelled, either in quality or workmanship, we would call their atten-tion to the card of Henry Janney, to be found under the head of "Washington." A handsome and neat-ly-made boot is not at all times a source of pleasure ly-made boot is not at all times a source of pleasure to the wearer, but often one of extreme torture; this is caused by the bungling manner in which the boot is fitted to the foot. Mr. Janney has devoted much of his time in studying the construction of the bunna foot, in order to ascertain how a boot should be cut and fitted, that will be perfectly easy to all parts of the foot. In this he has succeeded, so that it matters not what may be the shape of, or the number of corns on the foot, his boot is perfectly easy. Thus he has combined beauty with comfort. FARM NEAR WASHINGTON FOR SALE

REAL GO-AHEAD YOUNG MEN WANTING a fine Travelling Agency this spring W address, post paid, M. J. COOK, Feb. 16. Crawfordsville, Ind.

FARM NEAR WASHINGTON FOR SALE
THE subscriber offers for sale his Farm, situated about five miles from Washington, D.C., in Prince George's county, Md. It contains 1781 acres, more than 30 of which is a fine alluvial meadow, producing a ton and a half of hay to the acre, but which under improved cultivation would produce at least two tons. Hay sells in the Washington market at from $15 to $30 per ton. About four acres of the place is a marsh, covered with several feet in thickness of black carth, the result of decayed vegetation, which, proporly composted, is a source from which the upland may be enriched at a reasonable cost. About 60 acres of the farm is woodland—growth principally oak and chestnut. The land, except the meadow, is undulating, and affords many beautiful sites for building. There are many springs of excellent water on the place, and it is noted for its healthfulness. The soil of the greater part of the upland is a sandy loam, underlaid by clay—in some places, clay predominating. About 75 acres could be divided into small gardening farms, giving nearly an equal quantity of wood and arable land to each. There is an orchard of 150 peach trees and 60 apple trees on the place, all bearing. The farm is well fenced. The buildings are—a log house of four rooms, with a frame addition of three rooms, a meat-house of sun-dried brick, a log kitchen separate from the dwelling, a corn-house, stable, carriage-house, &c. There is a stream of water running through the place, with sufficient water and fall for a small mill. Price, $50 per acre. Terms—one-third cash; a long credit for the residue, if desired; or, it would be exchanged for real estate in the city of Washington. Address MARTIN BUELLI.

BACON'S MERCANTILE COLLEGE,

BACON'S MERCANTILE COLLEGE,

Northwest corner of Sixth and Walnut streets,

Cincinnati, Ohio.

THE undersigned has removed his Mercantile College to his new building, northwest corner of Walnut and Sixth streets, where he has fitted up a splendid suite of rooms, expressly for his business—having spared neither pains nor expense in making them in every respect the most convenient and pleasant school rooms in the United States.

The plan adopted in teaching combines practice with theory; instead of using books, the pupils are exercised in making original entries of every-day business transactions Journalizing, posting, balancing accounts, opening and closing of a great variety of different sets of books, both for partnership and individual business, where the business has been prosperous and adverse; and thus qualifying the student for entering into the practical duties of the accountant, in any kind of business.

The course of instruction will consist of Double-entry Book-keeping, embracing every department of trade and mercantile accounts, vis: Wholesale, Retail, Commission, Exchange, Banking, Manufacturing, Shipping, Individual, Partnership, Steamboating, and Compound Co. Business. Commercial Calculations, Practical Penmanship, and Lectures on Commercial Law; also, Lectures on the Science of Accounts, Custom of Merchants, etc.

In addition to the regular course of study, the undersigned has made arrangements with Henry Snow, Esq. Hon. Bellamy Storer, Prof C. W. Wright, and other eminent lecturers, to deliver a course of Lectures on the subjects of Commercial Law, History of Commerce, Political Economy as connected with commerce, and other subjects of great importance in a commercial point of view, and never before introduced in any Mercantile College in the United States.

Pupils are instructed individually, and not in classes; so that students may enter at any time, and proceed in the ratio of their capacity and assiduity.

Public examinations are had, (though pupils are examined privately, if they desire it, for those desirous of obtaining them.

From the Cincinnati Enquirer of March 12, 1853.

BACON'S MERCANTILE COLLEGE.—The examination of the students in Book-keeping exhibited a degree of proficiency on their part highly creditable to themselves and Mr. Bacon their instructor.

The most difficult problems in Double Entry were as rapidly solved as the most simple, giving simple proof to the audience that the informat on imparted during the session would be of practical benefit.

From the Cincinnati Daily Gazette.

The various complex questions proposed by the Principal and other gentlemen present were answered with great prouptitude and conciseness, which reflects great credit upon the course of study pursued at this institution.

 From the Cincinnati Daily Times.
 Mr. Bacon's school is in a flourishing condition and the patronage extended it is a high compliment to the thorough mercantile education there imparted. From the Chillicothe Ancient Metripolis of May 8 1853.

Mr Bacon is unrivalled as a teacher—a diplom from his College, in Cincinnati, is required as a-san qua non in obtaining situations in the best mercan tile houses in large cities From the Cincinnati Gazette, Nov. 8, 1853.

From the Cincennuit Gazette, Nov. 8, 1833.

Mr. Baeon has constructed the upper portion of his building expressly for the purposes of his College and, without any doubt, it is the most complete arrangement of the kind in the United States. From the Cincinnati Enquirer.
This whole institution is undoubtedly the most ele gant and finished establishment, for its purposes, the world.
